

16 States To Chart Courses

Hold Major Share Of Close Contests to Determine Control Of House, Senate

The balloting in 16 key states appears likely to chart the nation's legislative course for the next two years when upwards of 35,000,000 voters choose tomorrow among more than 1,000 candidates for national and state offices.

These 16 states, stretching from Massachusetts to California, hold the major share of close contests which will determine Democratic or Republican control of the house and senate in the 80th congress.

Many of these states also are among the 33 where governorships are at stake in this off-year election.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Clear weather in most of the country is forecast for election day tomorrow, with only the eastern seaboard and the extreme northwest racing wind and rain.

The U. S. weather bureau said rain is expected from the Appalachians eastward.

The state of Washington and Northwestern Oregon also face a spell of bad weather. Clear and cool was the Mississippi valley forecast.

With both major parties making their usual last-minute victory claims, attention centered on a final Republican drive to wrest nine senate seats from the Democrats. Added to those which they claim already are in the bag, the nine would give the GOP control of the senate for the first time since the New Deal came into power.

Democrats Optimistic

These seats are in New York, Massachusetts, Missouri, Idaho, Montana, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming and New Mexico. Democrats insist they not only will win in these races, but are unwilling to concede that the Republicans have a better than even chance to take over in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Wisconsin.

In the hope of cashing in on what many observers have called against the "ins," the Democrats have gone out after Republican-held senate places in Kentucky and California with what they contend are fair prospects of winning both.

These 15 states—along with Illinois which has no senatorial contests—have GOP leaders assert will give them control of the house. The Democrats sharply dispute these victory claims.

In the house, the Republicans now have 192 members. They need to retain all of these or equivalent districts and gain 26 for the 218 which marks a clear majority. The Democrats, with 235 members, could lose a net of 17 and still maintain control. There are six vacancies and two minor parties now represented among the 435 house places.

Senate Race

In the senate, the Republicans most make a proportionately larger gain of 10, since they now hold only 39 of the 96 places. Democrats, with 56, could lose seven and keep their majority organization intact. Both parties are fighting for the seat of Senator Robert M. LaFollette (Progressive), who was defeated in the Republican primary.

Ninety-seven candidates are in the field for 34 senate seats which will be filled in tomorrow's election.

There are 880 contestants for the 432 house seats at stake and 88 for the 33 governorships now held by 16 Democrats and 17 Republicans.

Election in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A nip-and-tuck battle for control of the congressional delegation in President Truman's home state drew to a close today as the candidates prepared to leave the decision with the voters in Tuesday's election.

Among the 2,500,000 eligible voters in the state was the President, who came home last Friday to cast his ballot, but so far has taken no part in the campaign which more than a score of democratic leaders into the state to stump for the ticket.

At stake, besides the President's own prestige in his own state—are one senate seat, the only state-wide contest, and 13 seats in congress, seven of which now are held by democrats.

The voters also will ballot on half of the state senate—the seats in even numbered districts—all of the house of representatives, a constitutional amendment calling for payment of $5 a day expense money to members of the state legislature, circuit judges, county officers and a varied assortment of local issues.

Leaders of both parties predicted victory.

No Eleventh Hour Appeal From Truman

Reaffirms Policy Of U. S. Trusteeship For Pacific Bases

By Ernest B. Vacarro

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Prospects of an eleventh hour presidential appeal to the nation's voters faded today as President Truman clung to his sideline role while his party organization fought the battle of ballots for Democratic control of congress in tomorrow's election.

With a speech now apparently definitely out of the picture, presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters an election eve statement by Mr. Truman, back home to vote, had not even been discussed.

Meanwhile, however, the president was on record for the second time in favor of exclusive United States trusteeship of captured Pacific island bases deemed vital to the country's security.

Each service placed three representatives on the group. It will advise the commission on "all matters relating to military application of atomic energy, including developments of bombs and control of information to the manufacture or utilization of atomic weapons," a joint announcement said.

At that time, the president said that the United States would petition the United Nations for authority to conduct the sole trusteeship of the island bases within the U. N. framework as long as they are needed. The policy advocates U. N. collective trusteeship for bases not vital to American defense.

But the president's attitude to reporter when he was questioned about a published report that the state department and the armed forces had differed over some aspects of Pacific base control. Ross said he had no knowledge of differences within the departments.

Lunch in Kansas City

Mr. Truman arranged to visit Kansas City for lunch today in his penthouse apartment of the Hotel Muehlebach with his staff. He said he would talk there with a few visitors before driving to Grandview, Mo., for the third time to visit with his mother.

The mother, Mrs. Martha E. Truman, will go to the polls tomorrow, the president said, despite her 93 years.

Mr. Truman told reporters his mother had informed him yesterday she will vote "the straight Democratic ticket."

That would include Enos T. Axcell, the Democratic nominee for congress from the Fifth district, who won the nomination from Representative Roger Slaughter after a public endorsement from the White House.

The president, Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret, will vote at Independence in the adjoining Fourth district where Representative C. Jasper Bell, a Democrat, is seeking re-election.

Shot in Leg, Dies in Creek

RICHMOND, Mo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—A man described as a fugitive by the state highway patrol was shot in the leg yesterday by a posse, but when the officer reached his body he was dead.

Col. Hugh H. Wagoner of the state patrol said the man was Clyde F. Beasley, 49, recently indicted by a federal grand jury at Kansas City for using the U. S. mails to defraud.

He said three highway patrolmen and two local officers surrounded the house where the man was presumed to be hidden. Instead of surrendering, he ran out and a volley of shots followed.

His body was found in a nearby creek bed.

Colonel Wagoner said Beasley had been accused of advertising highly trained dogs and accepting money for the animals without delivering them.

Attractive Jail

NORTH BEND, Ore., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The city police officer isn't quite sure what would be the best thing to do if he arrests a drunk and finds it necessary to give the offender a place to sleep it off.

When the state liquor store's lease expired here recently the city council voted to allow the store to use the jail temporarily.

Early End of TWA Strike Looms Ahead

Mediator Reports Tentative Agreement Has Been Reached

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Federal Mediator Frank P. Douglass today announced a tentative agreement which he said might lead to an early end of the 15-day strike of trans-world airline pilots.

Douglass said opposing sides had accepted in principle his proposal for arbitration of wage and other differences and arranged a meeting here this morning to complete the details.

A few points remain to be clarified, the mediator said. When that is done he said he expects termination of the walkout which has halted the company's international operations and thrown 15,000 other employees out of work.

Case to Panel

This proposed agreement would provide that the 1,400 pilots go back to flying while demands for higher pay for 4-engine plane fliers and for revised working rules are submitted to a panel whose decision would be binding.

David L. Behncke, president of the AFL Air Lines Pilots Association, accepted the arbitration offer by telegram and also sent a letter, Douglass said, giving his interpretation of some of the points covered.

Jack Frye, TWA president, also offered his interpretation of some points, the mediator said, and the two views will be reconciled in conferences.

TWA officials have said that some flying operations along the company's 28,000 miles of routes could be started as soon as the pilots agreed to return to work, but that it would take a few days to get the entire system back to normal.

Atomic Liaison Group Named

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The war and navy secretaries today named the six-man military liaison committee which will work with the atomic energy commission.

Each service placed three representatives on the group. It will advise the commission on "all matters relating to military application of atomic energy, including developments of bombs and control of information to the manufacture or utilization of atomic weapons," a joint announcement said.

Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, wartime commander of the far east 9th and 10th air forces, heads the army delegation. The chief of the navy group is Rear Admiral Thorvald A. Solberg, head of the navy's research and standards branch of the bureau of ships. Solberg was a member of the staff of the joint army-navy atom bomb test force at Bikini.

The other army members are Maj. Gen. Lunsford E. Oliver, commander of armored troops, including the 4th and 5th divisions, during the war; and Col. John H. Hinds, who held the wartime rank of brigadier general and was artillery commander of the second infantry division during the war.

The additional navy representatives are Rear Admiral Radph A. Ostlie, who served as aviation officer on the staff of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, and Rear Admiral William S. Parsons, deputy commander for technical direction of the Bikini tests.

Parties Ready For Election

Tuesday is the "off-year" general election day and voters are urged to go to the polls and cast their vote for their favored candidate. To be elected are a United States senator, a congressman from the sixth district, and a state representative, other than the thirteen county officers.

Weather conditions are predicted as being a beautiful day, which means an exceptionally heavy vote is expected by both the Democratic and Republican parties. Both party committees have organized forces to encourage the voters to vote, workers will be calling at each home throughout the day checking to see if eligible voters have gone to the polls.

In Pettis county, outside of Sedalia, there are thirty precincts. In the City of Sedalia there are sixteen precincts.

Allege Youth Kills Brother

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(AP)—John D. Gillman, 16, a runaway from a city-operated farm for delinquent youths, was held today for a coroner's inquest in the fatal stabbing of his brother, James, 20, in what police said was an attempt to defend his mother from a beating during an argument over rent on their two-room apartment.

Special Officer Walter Dorn said Mrs. Margie Jutton, 41, related that her younger son stabbed James once below the heart and struck her when she tried to collect a share of the rent from him yesterday.

Dorn said John escaped last August from the farm where he was under two years sentence for auto theft. James was discharged from the navy last year after serving two years overseas.

Missing Bride in Dallas Jail

(NEA TELEPHOTO)
Dallas, Texas police are holding Evelyn Cornish Globaker, 26, a comely brunette, who walked into the Dallas police department, unrolled $231 in currency from her curls and told Detective Capt. Will Fritz that it was part of a $700 robbery in Mobile, Alabama. A woman of the same name disappeared from an Atlanta, Georgia tourist home October 19, leaving behind a tear-stained note and a marriage license torn to shreds.

Snowstorm in Denver is Abating Today

Some Drifts Ten Feet Deep; Traffic Virtually Stopped

DENVER, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A snowstorm which blanketed this area during the past 36 hours was abating today and Coloradans who watched one of the biggest early winter storms in years began digging themselves out.

Six persons died in Denver from over-exertion or heart attacks as they walked through the drifts or sought to free stalled automobiles.

More than 16 inches of snow mantled the countryside from Denver, north to Cheyenne, and south to the northern border of New Mexico, with travel reduced to a minimum.

The highway patrol said travel conditions were worse in the eastern portion of the state, and warned motorists not to drive unless it was absolutely necessary.

Storm Moving Out

The weather bureau forecast generally clearing weather today with snow in the southeastern section of the state. Weathermen said the storm was moving out of this region and reported that snowfall had stopped in Wyoming and northeastern Colorado.

In Denver some drifts were as deep as 10 feet, forcing temporary abandonment of two street-car lines. Taxicabs refused to leave the business district and downtown automobile traffic was virtually at a standstill. Milk truck and other delivery services were shut down and police reported a wave of parked cars looting as drivers made their way home by bus or streetcar.

Child Killed by Truck

COOTER, Mo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Patsy Joan Flowers, aged 9, was struck and killed by a truck while walking along a farm-to-market road near here Sunday morning.

There'll be More Christmas Shopping Despts High Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—If you fall into the national Christmas shopping pattern this year you will.

Buy more things than ever before, especially home appliances and similar "hard" goods, despite the high prices you'll have to pay. That is the view of government officials generally.

They predict that the actual volume of things sold will be perhaps 10 percent greater than last year's record and that cash registers will show sales up 20 or 25 percent.

Although the soaring buying curve has leveled off somewhat this fall, storekeepers have been laying in goods hand over fist for the Christmas season.

Federal reserve board statistics show that department store stocks rose five percent during September and reached a point 36 percent greater than a year ago.

Electrical appliances like toasters, percolators and similar items will be more plentiful, but in such high demand that stocks will be inadequate in most areas, according to the civilian production administration.

Big Medicine Fails

MADRAS, Ore., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The white man's faith in his traditional source of weather information — from Chief Tommy Thompson of the Celilo tribes — has dimmed.

When a white neighbor asked the venerable chief what could be expected soon in weather, the chief gravely pronounced: "Don't know. My radio's broke."

Vote Yes on School Fund, Is Suggested

Vote Yes, is the suggestion of the Sedalia board of education, county rural school boards and the Parent-Teacher organizations, on the proposition which will be submitted to the voters Tuesday.

Shall the proceeds of the liquidated school fund of Pettis county be distributed annually? It is a proposition where there is no politics nor taxes involved, but a matter that under the new constitution must be passed on to the voters for approval.

The former plan of loaning school funds to individuals in the county and distributing the interest to the schools is no longer permissible under the law.

Educators, school boards and PTA members in this county are solidly back of the proposition of annual liquidation of the funds by the county court.

Vote on Judge Dew

Another proposition is that of submitting the name of Judge Samuel A. Dew of the Kansas City Court of Appeals to be retained in office. Judge Dew has no opponent. It is just a matter of voting to retain him in office.

He was appointed under the bipartisan court plan as associate judge of the court to succeed the late Hopkins B. Shain. He was born in Kansas City Feb. 4, 1882, was graduated from the public schools in Kansas City and the University of Missouri.

He served as circuit judge of Jackson county six years beginning in November, 1919. He returned to private practice in Kansas City.

Many and Good Toys

There will be good toys and "dam near enough of them," one CPA official reported. He added that metal and mechanical toys, electric trains and similar prized Christmas items will be available in many areas but "sky high in price."

Radios will be plentiful, but other large household items will continue scarce. Refrigerator output is rising steadily but still is 25 percent below prewar; electric and gas range production has dropped because the enamel-steel which they require is going into bath tubs and sinks for the housing program.

According to bankers who keep the federal reserve board posted on business conditions in many cities, department store executives are "very optimistic" over the Christmas outlook.

In Washington, Walter Morrow, president of the American retail federation, forecast that sales probably will be more than 10 percent greater than last year and that "the holiday business should be marvelous."

Crowd Enjoys Music, Barber Shop Singing

Symphony Orchestra Opens Eleventh Season Sunday

The Sedalia Symphony opened its eleventh season most auspiciously Sunday afternoon.

A capacity audience greeted the players and Abe Rosenthal, the capable leader.

The out of town attraction, which has come to be a part of each entertainment, consisted this time of the Kansas City Chapter of the S. P. E. B. S. Q. S. A.

This formidable array of title is in fact Barber shop singing which has always intrigued mankind and of late years has become an organized branch of male entertainment. Originating in the middle west, the chapters of the "Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America" has grown by leaps and bounds, and has provided light-hearted escapism and pleasure during these last strenuous years for performers and audiences alike.

Appropriately Dressed

The Kansas Citians, about fifty men in all, were dressed appropriately in barbers' coats, while the two quartets appeared in gay summer apparel.

The program opened with the perennial favorite, "Poet and Peasant Overture," by von Suppe, played with delicacy and precision by the orchestra.

The second number consisted of a group of four given by the visitors: "Did You Ever Get That Feeling in the Moonlight," medley; "I Had My Way, Dear," chorus; "Four Leaf Clovers," quartet; "Daddy Get Your Baby Out of Jail," chorus.

All these were received with enthusiastic applause and generous encores were given by the chorus and quartet.

The third orchestral selection was an arrangement of the ever popular "Sigmund Romberg Favorites."

Then followed "Suite Ballet Egyptian," by A. Luigini, charming and exotic dances gracefully played by the orchestra.

Audience Delighted

The second appearance of the Singing Barbers was hailed with delight.

Then followed "Frisolious Sal," chorus; "Gamboliers," quartet; "That Old Gang of Mine," chorus; "The Super Atomic Four," quartet, and "Sweet Adeline," chorus. All these brought forth enthusiastic applause and generous encores were given by the chorus and quartet, graciously in fact, and among them were hilarious take-offs of old time harmonizers. The really beautiful harmony of tone delighted, while the almost perfect enunciation of the singers cleverly revealed the meaning of the words, always an asset for the audience.

The final feature of the orchestra fitted in well with the atmosphere of the afternoon. It was Cailliet's clever arrangement of "Pop! Goes the Weasel."

Altogether the concert met with universal acclaim and proved that music may be both inspiring and lots of fun.

Sedaliens were proud of their orchestra, which brings with it entertainment of high order.

Hope to Reactivate Chapter

Joe Stern, a former Sedalia, is director of the Kansas City group. Included in the number was Percy Franks, who was formerly on the stage with Fred Allen and Harry Denni, a brother of Lucian Denni, who in former years came to Sedalia to direct performances under the sponsorship of the Elks.

It is the desire of Mr. Stern, as well as many Sedaliens who were members of the Barber Shop unit in Sedalia before the war, that the Sedalia chapter will be reactivated.

Irish Nurse is Out on Bond

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Bridget Waters, dark-haired, emotional Irish nurse who shot and killed her estranged husband was at liberty on $5,000 bond today while Judge A. S. Henderson pondered the sentence he will impose Wednesday on her conviction of involuntary manslaughter.

Nevada law provides for one to five years in prison, a fine up to $1,000, or both fine and prison sentence. A jury took six ballots but foreman Robert Wayne said none was on the state's request for a verdict of first degree murder that would have carried the death sentence.

The jury, eight men and four women, recommended that Mrs. Waters eventually be deported, inasmuch as she is a subject of Great Britain. Her 18-months son by the slain Frank Waters, may create, Judge Henderson said, a "conflict of laws between the British and American governments that might have to be decided in federal court."

Kemper Honors Former Pupil, Will Rogers

BOONVILLE, Mo., Nov. 4.—(P)—Kemper military school today honored its most distinguished former student, Will Rogers, self-styled, "valuedictorian of the class of 1898," and "its worst pupil."

It was the spring of 1898, that cadet Rogers borrowed $10 from a sister and went AWOL to work as a cowhand on a ranch near Higgins, Tex.

Since his death in 1935, Rogers' birthdate had been observed annually at Kemper.

The Will Rogers room at the school is marked in gold leaf with his name and is the room most desired by cadets.

They recalled that he was an erratic student. In history, a cadet, he made 100 one month and 68 next. His practical jokes led to many hours of extra guard duty.

To Entertain Football Boys

Secretary W. E. Hurlbut announced that the Rotary club would cooperate with other civic clubs in entertaining the football boys of Smith-Cotton high school at a dinner to be given on December 12.

Rev. J. Fred King made an announcement regarding the budget for the Boy Scout work. A motion was made and seconded that a special letter of confidence be drafted in commending the work of the Pettis county organization of Boy Scouts and a copy be sent to the headquarters in New York.

George Dillard, chairman of the rural-urban committee was given a vote of thanks for the successful meeting held recently at Ionia.

Facts On Pyramid

Mrs. Huff said in part:

One of the most interesting facts about the Great Pyramid is that every measurement is significant, the measurements on the floors of hallways and rooms are mostly in one inch per year, some in months. Many of the important events in history are indicated in some manner.

The birth of Christ is indicated by a change in the height of a passageway and measuring forward in time from that point the date August 4, 1914, the start of World War I, is clearly indicated as is November 11 for the armistice; the first anniversary of the Treaty of Versailles and also the third anniversary of the overthrow of Germany.

"Measuring backward in time from the birth of Christ 2170½ inches is a fine line chiseled in the wall which is thought indicates the date the pyramid was built. Astronomers discovered by calculation that this line pointing directly upward, pointed to Alcyone in 2170 which the astronomers consider the center of our known universe, about which our sun and planets revolve, once in 25,827.5 years, this is called a planetary year.

Dog Star Seen in 2170

"The date of 2170 B. C. is further indicated by the fact that if a person were standing in the hallway where the above mark is located and was looking out the opening on September 21, 2170 B. C. the dog star Draconis would be visible. It will not again be at this point for 25,827.5 years.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.
NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Before long the 19-man executive committee of the U. S. Golf Association will buckle down to the task of picking the 1947 Walker Golf Cup team and in the meantime a lot of good amateur golfers must be wondering about their chances. The basis of selection is golfing ability plus the ability "to be a good representative of the country" and with that much latitude the committee has grounds for including or omitting almost anyone. Bud Ward, for instance, was among the last eight in the National Amateur, and neither was Muscles Stranahan, yet their all-season records were fine. But Fred Kramer, semi-finalist at Baltusrol, was just a week-end golfer the rest of the year.

Suggestions Are Free
From this distance it seems logical that the U. S. G. A. should stage trials of some sort to pick the eight or ten men who'll play in England in May. Amateur golfers get too few chances for big-time competition unless they tackle the pros in open tournaments. Showings in the Southern, Pacific Northwest, Intercollegiate, Trans-Mississippi, Metropolitan and a few other tournaments are considered because they draw good fields, but they're not truly national. Of course, there are plenty arguments that they might lead to the development of "golfing bums."

Monday Matinee
The UCLA Bruins claim the only broken nose passing combination in current college football. Quarterback Ernie Case and End Budd Baldwin both have busted beaks. The Western Michigan College "B" football team has scheduled two games less than 24 hours apart, Thursday night and Friday afternoon, but with nearly 100 players on hand Coach Frank Noble expects to have enough to handle the job. The Los Angeles Rams hope to draw more than 80,000 for their game with the Bears next Sunday, busting the Cleveland Browns' record "and without any 25 cent tickets," they add.

Earthquake Recorded
WESTON, Mass., 4.—(AP)—A moderately strong earthquake about 4,380 miles south of Boston, probably in northern Chile, was recorded at 2:43:12 p.m. (EST) yesterday on the Weston college seismograph. The Rev. Daniel Linehan, S. J., reported today. The disturbance lasted for three hours.

These two men served their country in time of war and put in many months of active service on foreign soil in defense of their country. Jim Blue (five years) and Robert Younger (three years) and having been honorably discharged seek to reestablish themselves in civilian life and are asking for these offices, which they are well qualified to hold. Both are well educated.

The people of this county have a grand opportunity to help these men obtain county jobs by casting their vote in their favor, for which these men will be eternally grateful, and if elected will give the people of this county no cause to regret having aided them to secure these offices.

The people are not being asked to create any special job for them. These offices they seek will be filled by someone elected by the people, as these offices are part of the county system of government. It will be entirely up to the voters who it shall be.

Let's elect these men tomorrow. They need the job, the county needs the officials. Your vote and help will be greatly appreciated.

*We're going to make
LONG DISTANCE
the best ever!*

Most long distance calls go through while you hold the line, and long distance operators would be happy, indeed, if EVERY call could go through that way.

But in spite of the fact that we have more operators than ever before and have added as much new equipment as we can get, the heavy increase in long distance calling—particularly to near-by points—is crowding switchboards and circuits to the utmost.

We've ordered more equipment, and as fast as limited supplies of lead, copper, steel, and other materials permit, we'll get it installed to make long distance service the best ever.

Achievement Day By Home Economics Clubs

Artistic As Well
As Practical Exhibits
Made-Program
And Luncheon

The Pettis County Home Economics Extension Clubs held their annual Achievement Day, October 24th at Convention Hall with 750 people viewing the exhibits, eating lunch together and enjoying the program which was given in the afternoon. All of the thirty-five clubs were represented with thirty-four having club exhibits.

One of the most popular themes for exhibits centered around proper furniture arrangement—one of the units of work presented this year. Oak Grove Club arranged a reading corner, complete in every detail with posters, which had been used at the demonstration in their club, providing the background. These posters contained much information which could readily be applied by most homemakers. Van Natta Club as well as Walnut Grove Club used miniature houses—one furnished correctly, the other incorrectly—to show that they had accomplished much by their application of certain basic rules for the placing of furniture and accessories.

The bride came in for her share of attention with both Buncombe Club and Hopewell Club providing everything she could hope for. Clever wedding bells were used to form the words "Buncombe Willing Workers"—and the many lovely things arranged around the doll dressed as a bride gave evidence that the club members had been willing workers. A cedar chest filled with bedding and household linens completed the picture. Hopewell Club used part of their name for their exhibit—having a large "hope chest" overflowing with quilt-winning pieces of handwork, quilts, rugs, everything to gladden the heart of any bride.

South Abell club members did not designate a bride to use their many beautiful pieces of handwork and much of it will soon be found in many of their own homes no doubt. Manila Club, too, chose handwork for their display and the many lovely pieces were admired by everyone. Prairie Ridge centered most of their club exhibit around pillow cases and crocheted articles.

Display of Handwork
Miscellaneous collections of handwork were displayed by Sunnyside, Lookout, Stokely, and Neighborly Neighbors. The toys were a sight to make any little girl anxious for Santa. Feed sacks have proven as popular as ever with articles of every description being found on the tables arranged by Georgetown and Eldorado. Georgetown club had a very clever name plate embroidered with tiny flowers.

Food was not left out of the picture—La Monte Homemakers had arranged three most attractive and nutritious sound meals complete with flowers and silver. Had there not been such an abundance of food for the noon meal these three meals might have been in danger of being consumed rather than viewed. A cellophane cover kept the food in splendid condition.

Another project of the year "Mending and Darning", provided the theme for Hughesville and Bowling Green. Some of the articles displayed showed expert workmanship. Simple, yet effective methods of mending were shown.

Display of Aprons
Santa would surely like to engage members of Bennett, Champion Striped College, Bothwell and Meet Your Neighbor to make aprons for Christmas gifts. Every size, color and pattern could be found among the aprons displayed. Practical ones as well as fancy ones were to be found.

Ionian Club chose "Home Made Money Savers" for their exhibit. Recipes for the various products were available and many pencils and notebooks were used as folk copied ideas from the display. Wallpaper cleaners, homemade soap and soap chips, furniture polish, floor wax and nicest of all—hand lotion were all shown as money savers.

Dresden Club used lunch cloths for their display and they were lovely. Several card tables were set up with covers and center pieces being used very effectively. Bittersweet in an antique blue bowl was extremely nice on a pale yellow cloth. It was impossible to have all of them on separate tables—but they could be seen very readily.

Maplewood Club showed by posters and miniature models the work that had been done at each monthly meeting. This was an unusually attractive exhibit and showed that the club had been very active during the year.

High Price For 4-H Baby Bees

Tommy and J. R. Chamberlin of the Prairie Ridge 4-H club sold their two Shorthorn steers at the American Royal baby beef sale on Friday, October 25. Both steers sold for a high price per hundredweight.

The two baby bees, selected from a group of fifteen steers, were shown in the 4-H section of the American Royal Show held Saturday, October 19th. The steer owned by J. R. Chamberlin sold for $45.00 per hundredweight, and weighed 1100 pounds. Tommy Chamberlin's steer sold for $35.00 per hundredweight and weighed 920 pounds.

All 4-H club fat livestock was sold at auction to Kansas City livestock commission companies and others.

ing the year. Other clubs received inspiration for future programs.

Interesting antiques were found in the display from Oak Point. A piece of pewter belonging to one of the club members was 156 years old and one quilt was at least 100 years old. Some of the other things were extremely interesting even though they were not so old.

High Point Club put into practice the things they had learned at a recent leader training meeting on Slip Covers. Straight chairs and a stool were wearing new dresses which were very attractive. Smithton Home Economics Club does not believe in letting furniture stay hidden in the attic—so they reclaimed 2 chairs—one chair bottom being fashioned from corn shucks and the other having a needlepoint cover. Both were quite attractive and will be most useful.

The versatile screen made by La Monte Thursday Club caught the eye of everyone and since everyone could not carry it home with them did the next best thing by copying the blueprint which was also available. The screen was used for the baby's room and was complete in every detail—this little note explained that "If a new citizen has no room of his own, the back of a screen can store all of one's essential books and shelves and conceal his basement too."

Other uses for the screen were suggested by other clever notes. Arator Club was quite brave when they put out their very loveliest bedding which included everything—mattress cover, sheets, pillow cases, feather pillows, quilts, wool filled comforts, comfort protectors, blankets and spread.

Bulletins on the care of bedding and the proper selection were also used in the display. Their project originated when one of the club members demonstrated the carding of wool for the comfort.

Stress Fire Prevention
One of the most informative displays was the one on "Fire Prevention" arranged by Flat Creek Club. Children dressed in pajamas that had been treated with a fire proofing liquid were perfectly safe playing near the fireplace. Many articles were used such as kitchen curtains, ironing board covers, pot lifters were also shown. The fire proofing material was to be seen with directions for making it.

Longwood Club had the Stork Corner. A very interesting contrast was made by using two dolls, one fitted with old fashioned clothing and the other with modern clothing.

Home Sewing provided the thought for Smithton Friendly Homemakers. An easy method of putting in a zipper as well as a new way of making bound buttonholes was used by the Quisenberry Club.

And last but certainly not least was the beautiful floral display from Blackwater Progressive Club. Flowers were carried in by the bushels and one entire corner of the building was made into a flower garden.

All of the displays were of unusual quality and the club members are to be congratulated.

The Gift Shop was most successful. Tables were loaded with gifts ranging all the way from a jar of honey to doll furniture. Everyone could get "ideas" from this vast array.

The program consisted of special music, a skit, and a fashion show completed the day. The models used in the fashion show, directed by Mrs. Florence Elliott of Connor-Wagoner, were women selected from the various clubs. They wore the latest in dresses, suits and coats with the proper accessories. The County Chorus which was re-organized recently made its initial appearance.

Twenty-Four Clubs Were Represented By Exhibitors

Chrysanthemums of every color and size were entered in the Mum Show held October 24th at Convention Hall by the Home Economics Extension clubs. The stairway was banked with autumn leaves which provided a colorful background for the vases, baskets and potted plants.

Construct Soil Saving Dam

A thin section, concrete, soil saving dam was constructed on the Ernest Jones farm, northwest of LaMonte last week. These dams are used to let water down from terrace outlets to the bottom of permanent drainage ways. The purpose of this meeting was to demonstrate the use of such structure to the folks of Mr. Jones community as well as to all the folks in Pettis county who are developing water management systems on their farms.

This dam will let the drainage water from 25 acres, down approximately 5 feet, from the floor of the terrace outlet to the bottom of the permanent ditch and will prevent the ditch from cutting back into the field. This structure cost about $85.00 in materials including 20 sacks of cement, 4 yards of sand and gravel and 150 feet of hog wire. The labor cost would have amounted to at least $50.00 and included 2 days work for each of 5 men.

Mr. Jones, who lives 7 miles northwest of LaMonte, is sitting up a good management system on this farm as well as two others in the same community. On one of them, operated by Pete Moore, a Balanced Farm Plan is being developed. The water to go over this structure comes from a 40 acre field that was terraced last year. The terraces bring water from about 25 acres of the 40 acres to the outlet at this side of the field which gathers up the water and spills it out over this new structure.

J. U. Morris, County Extension Agent, made plans for the meeting. He was assisted in the construction by Ralph Ricketts, Extension Agriculture Engineer from the University of Missouri, College of Agriculture; Fred Viernick of the Portland Cement Association and Merle Vaughn, Associate County Agent, as well as Mr. Jones, his son, Elton, and 2 neighbors, Arnold Fischer, Pettis County terracing contractor, was at the meeting and told the folks attending that he planned to have one man available next year to supervise the building of such structures with the farmer providing the materials and labor.

ON New Year's Day, 1941, Gayle sat in her living room smoking a cigaret and staring into the leaping flames in the fireplace. She could hear active movements in the kitchen and dining room. Mrs. Mays, Tom, and the maid were all extremely busy, because there would be many people coming later in the afternoon for cocktails and egg nog. Bart was sleeping. He had awakened in the middle of the morning, had breakfast, and then gone back to sleep again. Gayle knew she would have to rouse him soon. Well, she would—and she would hide the fact that her world had fallen in ruins around her along with all the rest of the world.

She felt tired, too numb and beaten to think, but thoughts seemed to push their way into her resisting brain. They formed themselves in spite of her, and once formed, they taunted her with her blindness and stupidity.

"I ought to have known months ago," she told herself wearily. "It was as plain as anything."

In the past months Bart's flirtations had grown both more numerous and more open. She wondered sometimes if he actually thought she did not care. Once she had protested. "You owe me some consideration, Bart," she had said, careful to keep her voice quiet and controlled. "Maybe it is just fun to you, but it's humiliation to me—public humiliation. I suppose you aren't serious, but you act serious. If Beth didn't get the idea tonight you were mad about her, she must be terribly stupid, and I don't think she is."

"Oh, don't be silly, Gayle," he had protested, laughing. "You know I don't give a darn about Beth. She's a good-looking girl with lots of the old sex appeal. You can't help playing up to her. But what's a little play?"

reensburg, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Fox and children, Russell, Vera Jean, Edward, Margaret Jane, Wilma and Faune, Otis and Mae Burge, of Warrensburg, and Mrs. J. W. Tharrington.

Miss Gertrude McFarland, of Warrensburg, had the following dinner guests at her home Wednesday evening in honor of the birthday of Mrs. C. L. Sauls, of

"It doesn't look like play to me, Bart, and it doesn't look like it to anybody else but you. I didn't mind very much when I knew you were just playing, but now—well, Bart, I feel ashamed."

He had apologized then and promised never to humiliate her again, and until the New Year's Eve party at the Country Club the night before she had had no cause to complain. But he had drunk more than he usually did, and his attentions to Beth Morse had been too obvious for anyone to miss. Then just after midnight the two of them had disappeared for more than an hour. When Gayle had asked on the way home where they had gone, he had said he hadn't been with her. "Some of the fellows were down in the locker room swapping stories," he had explained glibly, "and I was with them. I don't know where Beth was."

He had left the bathroom with Beth. Gayle had seen them go, and it had just happened that her partner swung her past the main doorway when they came down the stairs together. He had lied. Gayle knew he had. But she had been so swept with emotion, so shaken with shame, anger, and despair, that she had been afraid to speak.

FOR three weeks Gayle kept her discovery entirely to herself. Pride would permit her to confide in no one, and she could not bring herself to speak to Bart. But the pain she was suffering, the disillusionment and shame, killed all her zest in living.

Then, altogether unexpectedly, even to herself, she spoke. She and Bart came home from a bridge party, and once they had taken off their wraps, he asked, "What's got into you anyway, Gayle? You go around looking like a ghost in a fog, and tonight you played like a dope. Honestly, I was ashamed of you. You did everything except trump your partner's ace."

"Did I?" said Gayle. She sat down, lighted a cigaret with trembling fingers and repeated, "Did I?"

"Did I? Did I?" he mimicked. "I'll say you did. What's got into you? You've been acting queer for weeks."

"Let's say from New Year's Day, just to be exact." Gayle's whole body was so taut that she felt as if she must scream. Where the sudden rush of rage came from, she never knew; but without warning, the control she had exercised so carefully was all gone. "Yes, I'll tell you what's wrong. I didn't think I would, but you asked, and now I'm going to tell you. I've been acting queer because my husband lied to me."

"Lied to you?" Bart's eyes opened wide. "What's got into you? I haven't lied to you."

"Oh, yes you have. You said you weren't with Beth New Year's Eve. You said you were down in the locker room. Well, you lied. You lied, I tell you! I saw you go upstairs with her, and I saw you come down with her. You'd been—"

"Gayle! No! I tell you, no! You've got it all wrong. I've leaned forward in my urgency and reached for her hand, but she snatched it angrily out of reach. I know you lied."

"I lied," he confessed. His head sank and his cheeks reddened. "I lied all right."

"You lied because—"

"Because I knew you wouldn't believe me if I told the truth." He lifted his head and looked at her pleadingly. "I didn't know what else to do. I'd had too many drinks, and I guess Beth did too. We went upstairs, and I'll admit there was some necking, but that's as far as it went. I know that's bad enough, but don't make it worse than it was. I'm sorry, Gayle—honest, I am. I've been sorry ever since—pretty damned ashamed, too."

In the end Gayle forgave him, but long after he was asleep she lay awake wondering if he had told her the truth. She wanted desperately to believe him.

WINGS OF TOMORROW: The Story of Aviation

BY CHARLES TRACY

Aviation editor, Cleveland Press; former Army pilot (Written for NEA Service)

(4) Modern warfare was revolutionized by air power in World War II. The performance of all types of aircraft was improved, and new methods of carrying out attacks were devised. Airborne infantrymen, carried aloft in giant gliders towed three at a time by transports, were important invasion components. Parachutists dropped behind enemy lines to harass and disrupt defenses. Squadrons of troop carrier and combat cargo planes carried out special missions in co-operation with ground forces, hauling artillery, troops, and supplies. Carrier aircraft saved many lives by swiftly evacuating wounded soldiers from battle zones to distant hospitals.

(2) Dog-fights in World War II were brief. The speed of modern fighters cut down their maneuverability. Aerial fights began and ended with a fast dive by the attacking plane on its foe. There was time for only a short burst from .50-caliber machine guns or 20-millimeter cannon. Aim had to be good, for the attacking pilot sped past his target at 400 miles an hour and was unable to turn quickly for a second run.

(3) Night fighters were developed and equipped with the latest radar devices. Operators aboard Black Widow P-61's could direct their pilots within firing range of enemy craft, tell them when their guns were on the foe, and enable them to send enemy planes flaming in the night. A foot-square magic box called "IFF" (Identification-Friend or Foe), in reality a small radio transmitter, was carried by all Allied planes. It was set to send a coded signal which distinguished, on a radar screen, friendly from enemy planes.

(4) The necessity of supplying armies scattered from Alaska to Burma called for an elaborate air force in itself—an air fleet of giant cargo planes. Notable among these was the old standby of the air lines—the Douglas DC-3. Later came the Curtiss Commando—C-46—the C-87, converted Consolidated B-24 bomber, and the Douglas DC-4. In them young Army pilots trekked over oceans to far corners of the globe in a steady caravan, making it hard to believe that Lindbergh had become a hero by flying the Atlantic less than 20 years before. They pioneered the world's most treacherous routes, such as the run from India to China over the lofty Himalayan mountains, hauling gasoline and vital materials for Allied armies.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—If you think times are tough today, drop in at the public library and ask for the back files of any newspaper for the fall of 1919 or the early part of 1920. That period was just about as long after the World War I as we now are from World War II and the headlines are amazingly similar.

In fact, with the mere change of a few names, a glance at 1919-20 headlines would almost convince you that you were reading the newspapers of today.

We were having the same troubles with Russia then — only a little worse, with American troops in Siberia and Murmansk. The northern Adriatic, as now, was the chief bone of contention at the Paris peace conference. Only it was Fiume instead of Trieste which caused riots in the streets of Rome and Belgrade.

"Jews massacred, robbed by Poles," was another tragic but familiar headline. "Louis Mar-shall goes to Paris to give authentic report of Poles massacring their fellow citizens because they are Jews." "Foresees Jewish state in Palestine. Judge Julian Mack tells of atrocities and asks for migration to Jewish homeland."

Surplus War Goods Scandal

"Pershing denies large quantities of war goods destroyed in France."

Rep. Emerson offers resolution asking war dept. to what extent soldiers were overcharged in France. "New York Times correspondent tells of burning automobiles in France." "War dept. criticized for offering $4,000,000 worth of fabrics for sale at public auction." "Sergeants arrested in Paris charged with the theft of American stores."

When it came to strikes, race riots and soaring prices, the domestic scene of 1919 was even more alarming. Labor troubles caused far more bloodshed. The alleged Communist menace was much worse.

May day celebrations in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and New York produced riots, "citizen armies," and an untold number of skulls and political fractures. The home of A. Mitchell Palmer attorney general, was bombed. A large-scale assassination plot had all but the most radical congressmen hiding under their beds. "Midnight bombs for officials in 8 cities" was the June 3rd banner story. Race riots in Washington, Chicago and St. Louis assumed the proportions of minor civil wars. "Attempt to blow up American Kessport." "Conspiracy to blow up federal building in Gary." "Max Gold, silk manufacturer's house, bombed." So screamed the headlines.

Housing Shortage in 1919

By July 6, 1919, the army stood at 704,845, with 235,000 of these in Europe. Eight months later when the Junkers and German army seized power in Berlin, fleeing the Ebert government to flee to Dresden, the American army of occupation totaled a nervous 18,000.

Meanwhile, the war department was recommending a universal military training program of three months for all 18-year-olds — more or less as today.

New York clergymen were making a survey of churches in an attempt to ease the housing shortage.

Following the failure of the railroad administration and the steel corporations to agree on prices, the industrial board of the department of commerce came to an end. Announced Secretary of Commerce Redfield: "So far as the department of commerce is concerned, the laws of supply and demand from now on will be permitted to govern the problems of industrial reconstruction."

Unchecked by governmental pleas and voluntary programs, prices spiraled. Shoes were three times their pre-war price and Franklin Simon offered women's stockings "2—$25 a pair." Coffee prices jumped 7 cents a pound and, despite the government's declaring 11 cents a pound a fair price for sugar, it was selling for 30 cents within a year. "Food now costs N. Y. residents 86 per cent more than six years ago," announced the New York Times.

Only a national "buyers' strike" in 1920, with prominent society women feeding their families on a dollar a day while their husbands were wearing overalls to their Broadway offices, changed the trend.
